THE NEWS

We are pained to record the death of Lieut. Col. J. A. Savage of the 36th regiment, which occurred in Washington yesterday. He was wounded some days since in front of Petersburg, but his injuries were not considered mortal at the time. He was a young man of great promise, and his untimely loss to the country and service will be deeply felt and mourned throughout the State. He leaves a wife and two or three children in Milwaukee, upon whom this blow will fall with crushing effect.

Mr. Fessenden has accepted his appointment, and been sworn into office.

The great rebel raid northward continues to increase in interest. Intense excitement is said to prevail along the Potomac, and in the States of Maryland and Pennsylvania. Mr. Lincoln calls on New York for 12,000 one hundred day men, and on Pennsylvania for 17,000. Gen. Hunter is said to be after the raiders. Our dispatches contain quite full particulars.

General Grant's tigers are crouching for another spring—this time for the death grapple. Nothing new from Sherman in.

Gold closed at $2.50.

NEVADA BOASTS the richest silver mines in the world, certainly with good reason if the Florence Lode turns out as rich in the general working as in one of the assays which have been made. The Virginia City Union states that the ore assayed was almost pure silver, it having yielded at the rate of thirty thousand dollars to the ton. The ore is found within ten feet of the surface of common soil. There are several veins of different qualities of ore, and the ledge is very large but somewhat decomposed by water. An old Mexican miner pronounces the... the richest mine in the world, as shown by the various assays.

The PRESIDENT in reply to a resolution of enquiry, sent to the Senate a communication from the Secretary of State, from which it appears that no authority has been given by the Executive of this Government or by any Executive Department to any one, either in this country or elsewhere, to obtain recruits either in Ireland or Canada, or in any foreign country, for either the army or navy of the United States. And such authority has been asked, it has been refused and absolutely withheld.

THE PEACE Democracy in the now free State of Maryland, do not flourish. General Benjamin C. Howard and Hon. Henry May, appointed by the late State convention delegates to the Chicago convention, have both declined. Mr. May was the Democratic Congressman who went to Richmond in the spring of 1861, to satisfy himself upon what terms the rebels would compromise and remain in the Union. The answer was so satisfactory that General Logan proceeded to Illinois, to raise a regiment for the war, and Mr. May now declines attending a convention which, if controlled by these Peace Democrats, will either present conditions which he knows will not be accepted at Richmond, or resolve on a free surrender to the rebels.

A FARMER in Boyle county, Kentucky, recently became anxious about his slaves, apprehending that they might leave him and enlist in the army. He accordingly called up one of the most intelligent of them, and asked him if they had any thought of leaving. Ben told him they had talked over the war a good deal, and then asked him what he thought the war was for, and what its results would be. The master answered that he supposed all the colored men would be free by the end of the war. Said Ben, "We want to be clear on this, for we think if the war is going to make us free, we ought to fight; but if it is for the Union and the constitution as they was, we think, massa, you ought to fight."

WELL PUT.—"We do not deserve to have a leader like General Grant," says the Tribune, "if his inexhaustible energy and fertility of resources have not taught us to endure delays and disappointments. There may be others. There may be indecisive battles, defeats, losses, but there will never be a disaster overwhelming enough to shake the purpose of the indomitable soldier who carries with him the fortunes of the Republic."

A CORRESPONDENT of the Louisville Journal writes from Camp Nelson, Ky., that there are 1500 negro soldiers there waiting to be clothed and armed. More are being mustered in daily by Col. Sedgwick. Gen. Burnside lately visited them, and they made a very creditable appearance. Adj. Gen. Thomas is expected this week to muster in and organize the regiments.

MILLIONS of fish in the Ohio canal have been poisoned by the discharge of refuse from the extensive distilleries at Troy, and lodge along the banks in such numbers as to cause an intolerable stench, and threaten a pestilence. If the refuse of Ohio whiskey carries such death to animals, what a paper of that region, what must the whiskey itself do?

WHEN GRANT lay at Young's Point, and had failed with his canals, and his Yazoo expedition, and his assault on Haines' Bluff, a rebel prisoner was exulting, and said Grant had failed in everything, and must give it up; Vicksburg could not be taken. "Don't trouble yourself," said the Union soldier, "GRANT has thirty-seven plans in his pocket yet!"

General Grant's tigers are crouching for another spring—this time for the death grapple. Nothing new from Sherman. Gold closed at $2.50.

NEVADA BOASTS the richest silver mines in the world, certainly with good reason if the Florence Lode turns out as rich in the general working as in one of the assays which have been made.

The Virginia City Union states that the ore assayed was almost pure silver, it having yielded at the rate of thirty thousand dollars to the ton. The ore is found within ten feet of the surface of common soil. There are several veins of different qualities of ore, and the ledge is very large but somewhat decomposed by water. An old Mexican miner pronounces the Florence the richest mine in the world, as shown by the various assays.

The PRESIDENT in reply to a resolution of enquiry, sent to the Senate a communication from the Secretary of State, from which it appears that no authority has been given by the Executive of this Government or by any Executive Department to any one, either in this country or elsewhere, to obtain recruits either in Ireland or Canada, or in any foreign country, for either the army or navy of the United States. And such authority has been asked, it has been refused and absolutely withheld.

THE PEACE Democracy in the now free State of Maryland, do not flourish. General Benjamin C. Howard and Hon. Henry May, appointed by the late State convention delegates to the Chicago convention, have both declined. Mr. May was the Democratic Congressman who went to Richmond in the spring of 1861, to satisfy himself upon what terms the rebels would compromise and remain in the Union. The answer was so satisfactory that General Logan proceeded to Illinois, to raise a regiment for the war and Mr. May now declines attending a convention which, if controlled by these Peace Democrats, will either present conditions which he knows will not be accepted at Richmond, or resolve on a free surrender to the rebels.

A FARMER in Boyle county, Kentucky, recently became anxious about his slaves, apprehending that they might leave him and enlist in the army. He accordingly called up one of the most intelligent of them, and asked him if they had any thought of leaving. Ben told him they had taken over the war a good deal, and then asked him what he thought the war was for, and what its results would be. The master answered that he supposed all the colored men would be free by the end of the war. Said Ben, "We want to be clear on this; for we think if the war is going to make us free, we ought to fight; but if it is for the Union and the constitution as they was, we think, massa, you ought to fight."

WELL PUT.—"We do not deserve to have a leader like General Grant," says the Tribune, "if his inexhaustible energy and fertility of resources have not taught us to endure delays and disappointments. There may be others. There may be indecisive battles, defeats, losses, but there will never be a disaster overwhelming enough to shake the purpose of the indomitable soldier who carries with him the fortunes of the Republic."

A CORRESPONDENT of the Louisville Journal writes from Camp Nelson, Ky., that there are 1500 negro soldiers there waiting to be clothed and armed. More are being mustered in daily by Col. Sedgwick. Gen. Burbridge lately visited them, and they made a very creditable appearance. Adj't. Gen. Thomas is expected this week to muster in and organize the regiment.

MILLIONS of fish in the Ohio canal have been poisoned by the discharge of refuse from the extensive distilleries at Troy, and lodge along the banks in such numbers as to cause an intolerable stench, and threaten a pestilence. If the refuse of Ohio whiskey carries such death to animals, what a paper of that region, what must the whiskey itself do?

WHEN GRANT lay at Young's Point, and had failed with his canals, and his Yazoo expedition, and his assault on Haines' Bluff, a rebel prisoner was exulting, and said Grant had failed in everything, and must give it up; Vicksburg could not be taken. "Don't trouble yourself," said the Union soldier, "Grant has thirty-seven plans in his pocket yet."

THE NEWS

WE are grieved to record the death of Lieut. Col. J. A. Savage of the 36th regiment, which occurred in Washington yesterday. He was wounded some days since in front of Petersburg, but his injuries were not considered mortal at the time. He was a young man of great promise, and his untimely loss to the country and service will be deeply felt and mourned throughout the State. He leaves a wife and two or three children in Milwaukee, upon whom this blow will fall with crushing effect.

Mr. Fessenden has accepted his appointment, and been sworn into office.

The great rebel raid northward continues to increase in interest. Intense excitement is said to prevail along the Potowmack, and in the States of Maryland and Pennsylvania. Mr. Lincoln calls on New York for 12,000 one hundred day men, and on Pennsylvania for 17,000. Gen. Hunter is said to be after the raiders. Our dispatches contain quite full particulars.

DISEASES OF THE THROAT AND LUNGS.

Dr. James Hunter on Chronic Catarrh.

Editors of the Chicago Tribune: Chronic Catarrh, like asthma and consumption, has hitherto had no remedy. It remains a stain and reprobation on the page of medicina. Nor has failure resulted from the want of means of relief within our reach, or from the seat of the disease, or the malady of its nature; for we can reach the diseased parts by all the forces of the materia medica, solids, fluids, and gases, and the disease itself is only a simple chronic inflammation. Physicians have failed, because they have not striven to succeed earnestly and rationally. They have generally been satisfied by squirting a little warm water up the nose, and prescribing an alterative by the stomach, which, of course, does no good. Catarrh is rarely found as a disease of the nose alone, but is generally accompanied by more or less hoarseness, showing that the irritation in greatest intensity is in the nasal membrane also involves the larynx and lining of the windpipe. We cannot, therefore, hope to remove it by applications to the nose only.

The course I have pursued, with invariably success is as follows: A mild astringent vapor is directed to be inhaled two or three times a day, from the inhaling instrument described in a former letter, the patient being careful to exhale through the nostrils. By this means the diseased surface is acted upon in every part. In addition to the use of the inhalations, I daily showered the nostrils with a solution adapted to the condition of the membrane by a silver showering syringe which I have had constructed for the purpose. The extremity of the syringe is passed into the throat, and then the curved part is turned up behind the curtain of the palate, and a jet of the solution is thrown against every side of the posterior nares at the same time. There is neither pain or inconvenience in making these applications, even little children submit to them from day to day, and get up from the chair laughing. By this simple treatment I have been able to break up the most invertebrate Chronic Catarrh in from four to ten weeks, and so generally successful has it been that I doubt if it will fail in one case out of one hundred when properly and faithfully employed.

Unfortunately Catarrh is too generally treated with equal neglect, by both physicians and patients, until it is lost sight of in the disastrous consequences to which it gives rise; we know that it exists in a greater or less degree in all forms of pulmonary disease, that it usually exists before symptoms of disease in the lungs have been manifested, and that it is the direct consequence of those "colds in the head" which become practically known to most of us two or three times a year. We regard Catarrh as the great feeder of pulmonary irritation, and do not believe we can by any other means, so effectually guard the lungs from disease, as by cutting off the Catarrh affection.

A Horrible Prophecy Fulfilled.

It is well known that A. H. Stephen, now officiating as Vice-President of the confederate barbarians, opposed, to the extent of his eloquence and ability, the secession of the southern states. He argued that under the benevolent government which they were setting about to destroy, they had been protected and fostered until they had become wealthy, great and powerful. That everything they had asked of the General Government was granted to them—that the South had always had a majority of the foreign ministers, Judges of the United States Court, and nearly all the Presidents. Even in regard to that most sensitive point, the agitation of the slavery question, he said:

"So far from the institution of American slavery in our section being weakened or rendered less secure by the discussion, my deliberate judgment is that it has been greatly strengthened and fortified, not only in the opinions, convictions and consciences of men, but by the action of the Government."

Again he says:

"The South ought to stand by and aid still in maintaining the constitution of the country. To make a point of resistance to the Government to withdraw from it because a man has been constitutionally elected puts us in the wrong."

On another occasion he said that our Government was the "best Government on earth." He left no argument untried to induce them to pause in their mad project. Having appealed to their honor, their gratitude, their reverence for the institutions of their fathers, their love of country, he at last appealed to their fears in the following prophetic passage:

"It may be that out of it we may become greater and more prosperous, but I am candid and sincere in telling you that if we rashly evince passion, and without sufficient cause shall take that step, that instead of becoming greater, or more peaceful, prosperous and happy, instead of becoming gods we will become lemons, and at no distant day commence cutting each other's throats."

DISEASES OF THE THROAT AND LUNGS.

Dr. James Hunter on Chronic Catarach.

Editors of the Chicago Tribune:
Chronic Catarach, like asthma and consumption, has hitherto had no remedy. It remains a stain and reproach on the page of medicine. Nor has failure resulted from the want of means of relief within our reach, or from the seat of the disease, or the malignity of its nature; for we can reach the diseased parts by all the forces of the materia medica, solids, fluids, and gases, and the disease itself is only a simple chronic inflammation. The extremity of the syringe is passed into the throat, and then the curved part is turned up behind the curtain of the palate, and a jet of the solution is thrown against every side of the posterior nares at the same time. There is neither pain or inconvenience in making these applications, even little children submit to them from day to day, and get up from the chattering laugh.

By this simple treatment I have been able to break up the most inextirpable Chronic Catarach in from four to ten weeks, and so generally successful has it been that I doubt if it will fail in one case out of one hundred when properly and faithfully employed.

Unfortunately Catarach is too generally treated with equal neglect by both physicians and patients, until it is lost sight of in the disastrous consequences to which it gives rise; we know that it exists in a greater or less degree in all forms of pulmonary disease, that it usually exists before symptoms of disease in the lungs have been manifested, and that it is the direct consequence of those "cold in the head" which become practically known to most of us two or three times a year. He argued that under the benevolent government which they were setting about to destroy, they had been protected and fostered until they had become wealthy, great and powerful. That everything they had asked of the General Government had been granted to them—that the South had always had a majority of the foreign ministers, Judges of the United States Court, and nearly all the Presidents. Even in regard to that most sensitive point, the agitation of the slavery question he said:

"So far from the institution of American slavery in our section being weakened or rendered less secure by the discussion, my deliberate judgment is that it has been greatly strengthened and fortified not only in the opinions, convictions and consciousness of men, but by the action of the Government."

Again he says:

"The South ought to stand by and aid still in maintaining the constitution of the country. To make a point of resistance to the Government to withdraw from it because a man has been constitutionally elected puts us in the wrong."

On another occasion he said that our Government was the "best Government on earth." He left no argument untried to induce them to pause in their mad project. Having appealed to their honor, their gratitude, their reverence for the institutions of their fathers, their love of country, he at last appealed to their fears in the following prophetic passage:

Direful as was the revolving prophecy to the imagination of the orator, events have more than fulfilled it.

We do not mention or enumerate the scores of midnight murders for the crime of loving the old flag, for they have become too common to excite our horror, but we allude to the inhuman butchery at Fort Pillow. Read the following extracts of the testimony taken before the Committee appointed to investigate the matter, and judge if the rebels in their madness have not become demons." An extract from the report of the Committee states:

"The huts and tents in which many of the wounded had sought shelter were set on fire, while the wounded were still in them; those only escaping who were able to get themselves out, or who could prevail on others less injured than themselves to help them out; and even some of those that seeking to escape the flames were met by those ruffians and brutal shot down, or had their brains beaten out. One man was deliberately fastened down to the floor of a tent, face upwards, by means of nails driven through the clothing and into the boards under him, so that he could not possibly escape, and then the tent set on fire, and then the building set on fire and burned. The charred remains of five or six bodies were afterwards found, all but one so much disfigured and consumed by the flames that they could not be identified, and the identification of that one is not absolutely certain, although there can hardly be a doubt that it was the body of Lieutenant Arkerstan, quartermaster of the Thirteenth Tennessee cavalry, and a native Tennesseean; several witnesses, who saw the remains, and who were personally acquainted with him while living, have testified that it is their firm belief that it was his body that was thus treated."

Surgeon Warner, who had charge of the hospital, after detailing the murder of several hospital patients, was asked:

We have heard rumors that some of these persons were buried alive. Did you hear anything about that?

Ans. I have two in the hospital here who were buried alive.

Ques. Both colored men?

Ans. Yes, sir.

Ques. How did they escape?

Ans. One of them I have not uncovered with personally, the other I have. He was thrown into a pit, as he says, with a great many others, white and black, several of whom were alive, they were all buried up together. He lay on the outer edge, but his head was nearer the surface; he had one well hand, and with that hand he was able to work a place through which he could breathe, and in that way he got his head out; he lay there for some twenty-four hours, and was finally taken out by somebody. The others, next to him, were buried so deep that they could not get out and died.

One of the poor fellows who had thus been buried alive was examined by the Committee and testified as follows:

Ques. How did you lose your eye?

Ans. They knocked me down with a carbine, and then they jabbed it out.

Ques. Was that before you were shot?

Ans. Yes, sir.

Ques. After you had surrendered?

Ans. Yes, sir; I was going up the hill; a man came down and met me; he had his gun in his hand, whistled it around, knocked me down, and then took the end of his carbine and jabbed it into my eyes and shot me.

Ques. Were any of their officers about then?

Ans. I did not see any officers.

Ques. Were any white men buried with you?

Ans. Yes, sir.

Ques. Were any buried alive?

Ans. I heard that one white man was buried alive; I did not see him.

Ques. Who said that?

Ans. A young man. He said they ought not to have done it. He staid there all night, I do not know as he ever got out.

Another witness testifies further of these "demons."

I heard them shoot little children not more than that high [holding his hand about four feet from the floor], that the officers had to wait upon them.

Ques. Did you see them shoot them?

Ans. I did not raise my head.

Ques. How did you know they shot them?

Ans. I heard them say, "Turn round so that I can shoot you good," and then I heard them fire, and then I heard the children fall over.

Another witness gives the language of these "demons."

They said, "Do you fight with these God damned niggers?" said they. "God damn you then, we will shoot you," and they shot one of them right down. They said, "I would not kill you, but, God damn you, you fight with these damned niggers and we will shoot you, and then they blew his brains out of his head." They then went around and counted them up; I laid there and made eighteen who were there, and there were six more below me. I saw them stick a bayonet in the small part of the belly of one of our boys and break it right off—he had one shot.

Could finds invent more infernal torture than the following:

Answer. When I went there in the morning I saw them, they were burning altogether.

Question. Did they kill them before they burned them?

Answer. No, sir, they nailed them to the logs; drove the nails right through their hands.

Question. How many did you see in that condition?

Answer. Some four or five; I saw two white men burned.

Question. Was there any one else there who saw that?

Answer. I reckon there was; I could not tell who.

Question. When was it that you saw them?

Answer. I saw them in the morning after the fight; some of them were burned almost in two. I could tell they were white men because they were whiter than the colored men.

Question. Did you notice how they were nailed?

Answer. I saw one nailed to the side of a house; he looked like he was nailed right through the wrist. I was then trying to get to the boat when I saw it.

Captain Marshall testified: "There was also one negro who had been thrown into a hole and buried alive. We took him out, but he lived only a few minutes afterwards." We presume he may have been the described by another witness, who saw a large mass of foam and dirt where somebody had been breathing through the earth and brushed it off, and saw a negro there still breathing."

But the last sicknesses with the revolving details. These "demons" in acts of cruelty, shame the scalping savages, and yet they have sympathizers at the North!

WONDERFUL DISCOVERY IN THE WORLD OF ART.—A new era in portraiture is predicted from the discovery of Mr. Swan, who presents a vivid life-like likeness of any one, enclosed in a cube of crystal. The effect of the new process is to exhibit the subject of the portraiture with life-like verisimilitude, and in natural relief. You take up a small cube, and look through what appears to be a little window, and there stands or sits before you, in a pleasantly-lighted chamber, a marvelous effigy of a lady or gentleman as the case may be. The projection of the nose, the moulding of the lips, and all the gradations of contour, are as distinct as if an able sculptor had exercised his skill; and the hair and the flesh-like of their proper tint, and the whole thing has a singularly vital and comfortable look. Indeed, were it not for the reduction in size, it would be difficult to avoid the belief that an actual man or woman, in ordinary dress, and with characteristic expression, was presented to your eye. The Swan system is about to be introduced into the United States.
